John Falvella Construction Services is proud to announce a new business development beginning in August 2021.

The licensed general contractor, who is headquartered in New York's Lower Hudson Valley, is putting renewed focus on its custom home building service and executing on plans to expand to parts of Long Island. In particular, the home builder will base its expanded service area on the South Fork, namely Montauk and the Hamptons.

For context, the construction company is expanding to Montauk as a direct result of its concentration on the custom home building sector. Observing that there is a steady demand for luxury custom homes in Montauk and the Hamptons, John Falvella Construction Services aims to accommodate the market's needs.

Since its founding in 1983, John Falvella Construction Services has been located in Montgomery, NY, providing a wide variety of general contractor services. However, in the summer of 2021, owner John Falvella announced plans for his general contractor company's expansion to Montauk and narrower focus on custom home building.

Now, clients who seek to build in the Hamptons will be able to hire John Falvella Construction Services for luxury custom home building and home additions, including in-house architecture and design services. These services are available to property owners in Montauk, East Hampton, Bridgehampton, Wainscott, Napeague, and surrounding areas.

"Residents of Montauk and the Hamptons have discerning taste, and my team is equipped to exceed their ultra-high standards," Falvella says. "We're unique in that we actually perform all of our architecture and interior design services in house, which makes collaborating with our clients totally seamless. Plus, it guarantees they're going to get the exact house they've been dreaming of."

Falvella is a licensed general contractor with 40+ years of trade experience, providing end-to-end construction of custom homes in Montauk, the Hamptons, and nearby communities on the South Fork of Long Island.
